

As a pioneer in organic baby food, we fully appreciate the concern of parents surrounding the quality and safety of their children's food. Our number one priority has always been the safety of our food, and please be assured that all of our ingredients are tested to verify that they are below regulatory limits for heavy metals prior to use. We welcome the continued conversation with industry experts and regulators in researching and defining standards related to heavy metals.